I don't know why my people moved away and left me. I was alone in the backyard with my fur brother for days without food or water. We were really scared and finally a nice man came and picked us up. I get lots of food and water now. The people are really nice, but I'm still a little afraid. My favorite thing is when they take me outside. That is all I've ever known so it feels strange to live in a small kennel. They tell me that I could have a chance to live inside with a nice person. They say this person will take good care of me and I'll never be abandoned again. Could this be true? Are you that person to give me a chance?
